

Mutual Aid/Support Groups

Long-term recovery from alcoholism and drug addiction is an ongoing life process. Millions of individuals and family members have found mutual aid/support groups (also known as self-help groups) to be extremely helpful in achieving and maintaining long-term recovery.

Mutual-aid support groups play a vital role in alcohol and drug addiction recovery in the United States and around the world. And, research has consistently and clearly demonstrated that active involvement in mutual aid/support groups significantly improves a persons chances of long-term recovery.

Last year alone, more than 5,000,000 people across the nation attended mutual aid/support groups. The two best known mutual aid/support groups are Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) and Al-Anon Family Groups.

Alcoholics Anonymous (AA), co-founded in 1944 by Bill Wilson, a stockbroker from New York City, and Dr. Robert Smith, a physician from Akron, OH, now estimates it has more than 64,000 groups and an estimated membership of more than 1.4 million members in the U.S. and Canada. Worldwide, AA has more than 116,000 groups and an estimated membership of 2.1 million.

“In the end, Bill Wilson’s alcoholism proved not to be the tragic undoing of this brilliant and loving couple, but rather the beginning of two of the twentieth century’s most important social and spiritual movements--Alcoholics Anonymous (A.A.) and Al-Anon Family Groups.” - From “When Love is Not Enough--The Lois Wilson Story” viewer’s guide

Al-Anon Family Groups, established in 1951, was co-founded by Lois Wilson (wife of Bill Wilson) and Anne Smith (wife of Dr. Bob Smith) and now estimates it has more than 16,000 Al-Anon and Alateen groups and an estimated membership of more than 215,000 in the U.S. and Canada.

Since AA started in 1935 and Al-Anon in 1951, there has been a dramatic growth in the number of mutual aid/self-help groups addressing a wide variety of needs of people coping with alcoholism and drug addiction, as well as many other types of problems: food, sex, gambling and a range of mental health issues.

Those who attend mutual aid/support groups often find a deep sense of fit--a sense of finally discovering and connecting to the whole of which one is a part. Within this community of like-minded individuals, mutual aid/support groups help you take responsibility for your alcohol and drug problems and for your recovery.

Says William L. White, a noted recovery advocate, “The recovery community is a place where shared pain and hope can be woven by its members into life-saving stories whose mutual exchange is more akin to communion than communication. This sanctuary of the estranged fills spiritual as well as physical space. It is a place of refuge, refreshment and renewal. It is a place that defies commercialization--a place whose most important assets are not for sale.”

Mutual aid groups are nonprofessional and include members who share the same problem and voluntarily support one another. Mutual aid groups do not provide treatment but provide social, emotional and informational support focused on taking responsibility for their alcohol and drug problems and their sustained health, wellness, and recovery.

For some groups, meetings can be “open”--anyone can attend or “closed”--attendance is limited to people who want to stop drinking or using drugs.
